The subject continues to have certain limitations, despite the author's explanations, including: <ul style="list-style-type: none">- The theoretical aspect of the literature review does not need to include equations. As for the empirical review, it is limited exclusively to the Nigerian case study. It would be appropriate for it to explore other geographical contexts where similar research has been carried out, in order to enrich and nuance the results.- Methodologically, the study does not specify the source of the growth model used, or even the type of growth adopted. Furthermore, no tests are presented in the results section, nor in the appendices, even though the method requires tests.- It would also be interesting to discuss the results in greater depth.
