Is the title of the article suitable? (If not please suggest an alternative title)	Yes	Thanks
Is the abstract of the article comprehensive? Do you suggest the addition (or deletion) of some points in this section? Please write your suggestions here.	The abstract of the article provides a good overview of the study by describing its aims, methodology, key findings, and conclusions. However, it could be improved by adding additional information such as names of the tool used in this study for data collection, and highlighting the unique contribution of the study, such as filling a gap in research focused on high school students in the Philippines.	Ok Done
Is the manuscript scientifically, correct? Please write here.	The manuscript appears to be scientifically accurate overall, as it follows a structured research methodology, uses validated instruments, and employs appropriate statistical tools to analyze the relationship between smartphone addiction and sleep disorders.	Ok
Are the references sufficient and recent? If you have suggestions of additional references, please mention them in the review form.	The manuscript includes a well-rounded list of references. Most references are recent, with several from 2021–2024, ensuring relevance to current scientific discussions. However, the APA format has to be followed.

Is the language/English quality of the article suitable for scholarly communications?	The language quality of the article is generally clear and understandable, but it has areas that require improvement to meet the standards of scholarly communication. Below is a detailed assessment: Strengths: Clarity: The article's purpose, methodology, and findings are communicated effectively. Sentences are generally straightforward, making the content accessible. Structure: The manuscript follows a logical structure, with appropriate headings and subheadings. Areas for Improvement: Grammar and Syntax: Some sentences are grammatically incorrect or awkwardly constructed, which can hinder readability. For instance: "Smartphones are technical devices that have a huge impact on people's daily lives, causing them to change their habits and behaviors." This sentence could be rewritten as: " Smartphones profoundly influence daily life, shaping habits and behavioral patterns." Redundancy: Certain ideas are repeated unnecessarily, especially in the abstract and introduction. For example: "Smartphones are technical devices that have a huge impact on people's daily lives, causing them to change their habits and behaviors" is reiterated multiple times. Scholarly Tone: The language occasionally lacks the formal tone expected in scholarly writing. For instance: Phrases like "causing them to change their habits" and "students are moderately addicted to smartphones" could be rephrased to sound more professional. Transitions: Some paragraphs lack smooth transitions, making the narrative feel fragmented. Adding connecting phrases would improve flow. Use of Active Voice: Passive constructions dominate the text. For instance: "The study employed a descriptive-correlation type of research." This could be rewritten as: "This study used a descriptive-correlational research design."
