In this age and time ,most of people in rural and urban areas suffer from hypertension. This study sheds light on the various supplements or ayurvedic medicines taken by people in the belief that it will help with management of hypertention.But the important thing is drug interaction which can cause more harm than benefit.Such studies can pave the way for further research in supplements and their interaction with prescription medication

Optional/General comments	I loved the idea of this manuscript. We only think prescription medication can have side effects. we usually overlook the multiple supplements and ayurvedic drinks and powders we consume mindlessly. Such studies bring our attention to the silent killers we might be consuming with even thinking.
