Please write a few sentences regarding the importance of this manuscript for the scientific community. A minimum of 3-4 sentences may be required for this part.	This case study is significant for the scholarly community because it sheds light on the impact of socioeconomic transition on community-based development, particularly in rural regions such as Moncongloe Village. It emphasizes the simultaneous consequences of migration and industrialization on social capital and community engagement while proposing adaptive measures for long-term growth. The study adds to the larger discussion about rural development by emphasizing the need to balance external assistance with local initiatives. It is a valuable resource for policymakers, scholars, and practitioners interested in inclusive and adaptive development models.
Is the title of the article suitable? (If not please suggest an alternative title)	The title seems suitable for the relevant study.
Is the abstract of the article comprehensive? Do you suggest the addition (or deletion) of some points in this section? Please write your suggestions here.	Though the article attains key information about the total research, it also lacks the scope of the findings and limitations. Moreover, the critical findings remain disconnected from local aspects which can be incorporated in the abstract. So, the economic transformation and its influence could be incorporated for
Is the manuscript scientifically, correct? Please write here.	The manuscript is scientifically sound, with a defined study objective: to examine the impact of socioeconomic transition on community-based development in Moncongloe Village. It employs appropriate qualitative approaches such as interviews, participatory observations, and document reviews to ensure thorough data collection. The study is based on significant theories such as social capital and participatory development, and its conclusions are linked to existing literature, But the whole research paper can be presented with variety of aspects such as economic variables and local markets as well.
Are the references sufficient and recent? If you have suggestions of additional references, please mention them in the review form.	Though the references are recent I prefer the use of much more influential references for the betterment of the research paper.
Is the language/English quality of the article suitable for scholarly communications?	The language quality of the article is good but there is scope for modification and more formal and better connectors could be used for suitable scholarly communication.
